> Seville had one of those bold robberies you read about in the paper, out hunting, his clerk Mr. Hyde, being alone in the store. Three colored men entered the store and wanted something that the clerk had to go to the second floor for. When he came down his customers were gone, so were two new overcoats, a wool-lined coat and vest and two pairs of trousers. The men made good their escape Rather bold for this little burg.

Some of the colored boys got into scrap Monday night down at their sleeping quarters. It seems they had been playing cards, or gambling, and disagreed. One cut quite a slice out of the other fellow's arm and then lit out. The bunch were quite noisy all night.
